I trust all is well. Do you have JPEG images of your 1792 coinage ?

I just proved that the ANS J2 with the cracked obverse die ex Higgy-Boyd is not genuine. Its host was the Parmelee, Brand, Norweb coin. We found almost a dozen markers between the 2 pieces - rather neat.

We are trying to get images of the silver cent cents and dismes to see how many more may have been hosts for the casts, and electros.

Saul

Dear Saul:

I was fascinated to receive your comments concerning the J2 1793 coinage in our possession.

We will be glad to cooperate and try to locate the two coins which we own and which you have requested images. They are in one of our bank vaults. What we would like from you is an image of both types of coins which you believe are casts or electrodes.

We want to assure you that we will retain this information in a confidential manner that you determine and have no desire to disclose any information that you have discovered without your written permission.

As you may know, these items in our collection are from the Green Estate in the 1941 period. If you need more information as to these coins or similar ones from other sources, we can undertake to find Johnson's inventory and sale to others which we retain the invoices and those sold through them.

We are delighted to hear from you and hope we retain enough of our marbles to cooperate.

Thanks. I will mail you the 2 images, the ANS image will have the scratches and marks which match to the Norweb coin circled.
I do not know when these copies were made. Obviously, it had to be prior to 1937 as I doubt the Norweb coin was available for this once Brand and his family had it. Steigerwalt purchased the J2 in Parmelee's sale so perhaps these were made at that time. Breen notes that Dr. Judd's J1 was also used to make copies. Regrettably, I do not know who owns this. Either this or the Stearns coin is owned by Don Patrick, the other might be in Bill Anton's collection but I am not sure.

As for yours and your J10, please email the correspondence and/or images to me at the following address.

I would need your mailing address if you want hard copies of those 2 images.

As for the Mitchelson 1815, if they weren't doing something to the showcase which allowed them to take out the 1815 and image for Heritage's little monograph on them, they would still think it was original and not an altered date.

I believe your J1 and J10 are originals but what we are trying to determine is if others are copies so the more "host" coins we see, the more likely we are to determine if other fakes exist as there have been questions regarding the J2s in the ANA Museum, the Lohr example and the Anton piece. Even the Lauder example has been questioned in the past.

I do not know if I sent you these in the earlier email but here are images of the Norweb and the ANS coin marked up.

All of the scratches etc circled on the Higgy-Boyd-ANS example, appear on Parmelee, Brand, Norweb, A. Weinberg piece so the Norweb coin had to be the host for the creation ANS piece. I do not understand how this and the other copies got the obverse crack. Robert Hoge at the ANS has asked me about that as well but I do not know enough about how copies are made to answer his inquiry. The ANS has the only copy I have seen in copper although they also have similar silvery base metal examples as well. They thought these were base metal copies of the Higgy coin as opposed to all of them, including the Higgy coin, being copies.

Oh well. I also discovered that the Mitchelson 1815 half eagle in the Connecticut State Library collection was a doctored 1813 so I helped ruin their day too.

Saul

Dear Saul:

Re; 1792 Silver Center Cent

It is fortunate that I have had the opportunity to check my correspondence and memory as to the silver center cent as some of my recent communication to you needs correction and explanation.

After acquiring the Green Estate coins and so forth, I did not own the 1792 silver center cent. Naturally I desired that it would be nice to own one. My relationship with Fred Boyd both before and After B. G. Johnson's death was extremely close. Any coins he asked me for to see or to own. I sent to him and he sent me whatever he felt that I would like to see or own. He was teaching me, helping me with research, and helping to build my collection. He also received from me some of my collection which he kept and helped me with whatever I was researching and writing whether coins or paper money.

I am sending you a copy of my letter of September 27, 1951 which on page 2 refers to my opportunity to compare two silver center cents and two dismes with those at the Massachusetts Historical Society. I confirmed my opinion as to which were genuine or counterfeit. I apparently thought Fred was checking my ability to determine genuine from counterfeit pieces. I returned three silver center cents and thanked Fred for the genuine silver center cent.

Sincerely,

Eric P. Newman, Pres.

Dear Eric

I have received that during 195~ I will answer letters at once
yours is the first this year, I can hear you saying the old I said so
Eric I hope you will forgive me again

Thank you ever so much for the Thomas Rockwell spoon, it is now in the show case with my other American Silver - I do not have W. Jones spoon
as I do not collect silver after 1800 -
I do not have any silver made by John Hall.

W. Jones has not sold me the Huckle Burrows Jennings token as yet may be when he gets around to it, I will be able to buy it -

I note that Mary Cruzan will take leave for the silver and the Geo III Rex Pcs.

Enclosed please find check —

I am returning the fakes for you for the Experts Collection, you be surprised if I were to tell you how much I paid for 1 of the pair (Silver Cante) was a great Rant and the Newcomb Collection, I now tested the pieces as I thought it looked OK.
I am not returning this to you as I expect to have some fun with it one of these days

I have not heard from Dr. Freeman lately, my fault, did not answer his letter.

We both wish you and your family
good health and happiness during the year
Sincerely Fred

On July 21, 1951 I created a memo of coins exchanged by Fred Boyd and myself at Ringoes, New Jersey in which I mention a couple of coins which sent from me to Fred. I enclose a letter of January 2, 1952 which contains a statement that in order for me to fool the experts that I would be surprised if he told me how much he paid for the Silver Center Cent. It was a great question mark in the Newcomer Collection which Fred did not test and looked okay to him as he wanted to have some fun with it himself. A copy of that letter is enclosed.

September 27, 1951

Mr. F. C.C. Boyd
Ringoes, New Jersey

Dear Fred:

What I know about spoons would scarcely fill one, but I am sending under separate cover a spoon of Thomas Rockwell (1775), Norwalk, Connecticut, which I obtained for you. I will also send, if I can get my friends in Boston to find it, a spoon of W. Simes of Portsmouth, N.H. circa 1820, probably the father of the William Simes who made the Hard Times Store Card. This is the missing sociological link between coins and spoons just as coin silver is the hereditary link. That last sentence is about as accurate as the "circa" they use for dating silverware. In any event, do you have any silverware made by John Hall in your collection?

With respect to Huckel Burrows & Jennings token, I wrote the Brand Estate and they indicated it was being handled by Charles Wormser. He wrote me he already had a customer for it when he locates it, but that I would be in line after that customer. The customer may be you and, if so, you might find it best to tell him I was endeavoring to find it for you.

I heard from Mary Cruzan about the $365.00 list of coins of hers I left with you, namely:

Oak Tree shilling 9 I fine $40.00 mxco
Oak Tree shilling 5 A fine $50.00 mxco
Pine Tree double struck shilling unc. on small
planchet $75.00 mexl
Pine Tree shilling 5 B-2 v.f. $50.00 ocex
Willow Tree shilling $150.00 bmexc.

September 27, 1951

She states that you may have those and the probably unique Georgius III Rex - Eagle one cent (Ten Eyck) all for the sum of $600.00. In my opinion the Willow is a rare die of a rare coin and thus most reasonable.

Now that your paper money is on its way out I assume you will have room for more coins. They made a lovely catalogue out of it.

I had the chance to compare the 2 silver centers and the two dismes with the specimens at the Massachusetts Historical Society. They confirmed the opinion I had already formed about the coins, but I think you were testing me anyhow. With the spoon I am returning the three bad ones as you requested but if you have no desire to keep these fakes I will put them in my fake collection. I have a large group of phonies - beautifully mounted - which I keep at home to fool the "experts".

The genuine silver center cent is a beauty and it is a real pleasure for me to have it, thanks to you. The three Oak Tree shillings I left with you ought to add to your die varieties and if you have any duplicate dies of others I will check to determine whether I have them.

Is there any opportunity as yet to see the Johns Hopkins collection? Dr. Freeman ought to be ready to permit a visit.

Evelyn joins me in sending you and Helen our very best wishes and repeated thanks for your hospitality.

Sincerely,

EPN;atb
